

State telephone privacy laws are important tools in protecting the privacy and quality of life of individuals. My husband and I have benefitted tremendously from Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. We are busy professionals who cherish our time at home. At one time, we were plagued with telemarketing calls, but have not received one since the law went into effect. Telemarketing is an unwelcome annoyance that is met with disdain in our household. Please do not implement any proposal that will interfere with Indiana's highly effective and extremely popular telephone privacy legislation.
